Tackling the widespread and critical impact of batch ... Robert B. Scharpf is an assistant professor in the Department of Oncology at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. He develops statistical methods and software for high-throughput genomic data. Statistical Inference (and What is Wrong With Classical ... Statistical Inference (and What is Wrong With Classical Statistics) Scope. This page concerns statistical inference as described by the most prominent and mainstream school of thought, which is variously described as "classical statistics", "conventional statistics", "frequentist statistics", "orthodox statistics" or "sampling theory". Correlation and linear regression - Handbook of Biological ... Summary. Use linear regression or correlation when you want to know whether one measurement variable is associated with another measurement variable; you want to measure the strength of the association (r^2); or you want an equation that describes the relationship and can be used to predict unknown values. Introduction.

Kruskal-Wallis test - Handbook of Biological Statistics How the test works. Here are some data on Wright's F_{ST} (a measure of the amount of geographic variation in a genetic polymorphism) in two populations of the American oyster, Crassostrea virginica. McDonald et al. (1996) collected data on F_{ST} for six anonymous DNA polymorphisms (variation in random bits of DNA of no known function) and compared the F_{ST} values of the six DNA polymorphisms to F . Validity (statistics) - Wikipedia Validity of an assessment is the degree to which it measures what it is supposed to measure. This is not the same as reliability, which is the extent to which a measurement gives results that are very consistent. Within validity, the measurement does not always have to be similar, as it does in reliability. However, just because a measure is reliable, it is not necessarily valid.
